HISTORIC BUILDING MARKER PROGRAM
GUIDELINES AND CRITERIA

GENERAL RHS GUIDELINES

Any building in Radnor that meets the following criteria and guidelines is eligible:

- Information: The building must be have a sufficient amount of documented historical data in the RHS building inventory. If a building is not documented in our inventory, an owner can still submit an application if the building was built in or before 1945, meets the RHS guidelines and the applicant is willing to provide historical information for the plaque (with citations).

- Historical Significance: A place that has been the site of a significant local, state or national event or has contributed to the civic, social or political history of Radnor.

- Architectural Significance: A place that retains substantial historic fabric and configuration so that it expresses its original design as seen from the public Right of Way. See Specific Criteria listed below.

- Contributes to the Overall Development Pattern: A place that contributes to the overall historic streetscape as well as to the overall neighborhood building pattern such as but not limited to roof lines and façade materials.

- Design elements of the building must appear to be original or retain the original character.

- No exterior renovation work can be in progress at the time of review.
SPECIFIC CRITERIA FOR ARCHITECTURAL SIGNIFICANCE

The specific guidelines for the awarding of markers apply only to the building’s exterior. These guidelines DIFFER from those of the Historic Architectural Review Board (HARB). An approval for a Certificate of Appropriateness received from the HARB does not indicate or guarantee eligibility for an historic marker. Actual approval of a structure for a marker is determined by the RHS and based on the following criteria:

1. Exterior Wall Treatment – The material in place must be of the same type or have the same visual effect as would have been appropriate to the original. Exterior repairs or additions should preserve and complement the proportion, appearance, and texture of the original. Vinyl, aluminum or other similar siding is not recommended. Sandblasting is strongly discouraged.

2. Exterior Details – All exterior details should be retained or replaced in appropriate forms and materials. Particular attention should be paid to doorways, cornices, corner boards, porch elements and window details. Non-integral parts of the structure, such as fencing, landscaping and parking should not detract from the historic nature of the structure.

3. Roofs – Rooflines should be respected. Original roofing materials are preferable; however, when modern materials are used, they should show sensitivity to the original roof colors and textures.

4. Windows – The Radnor Historical Society encourages and looks favorably upon the preservation of historic windows. Whenever possible, historic windows should be repaired rather than replaced; however if replacement is necessary, replacement windows should closely match the original in terms of historic style, configuration, profile, function and appearance.

5. Additions – Additions should not detract from or obscure the historic character of the building. It is preferable to have additions built on the rear façade or in areas not visible from public viewing. The scale of the addition should not detract from the original building and existing site.
